BETTER EGG PRICES ARE DUE THIS FALL.

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 1 1925.—With egg prices a little higher than usual for this season of the year and steadily working upward, poultry specialists of the Agricultural College and Extension Service, Auburn, say that steps should be taken now toward maximum egg production during the fall and winter. Among the steps to take they mention, first, a thorough culling of the flock in order to get rid of the loafers and those which will never be profitable. In culling demonstrations it has been found that approximately half of the Alabama hens have been kept at a loss. With proper feeding some of them would become profitable but many of them never will.

Second step is to provide for satisfactory housing, which can be done at a small cost. To lay during cold weather hens must be protected. If kept in an improper house or out in the open they will lay very little. The county agents will furnish plans.

The third step is to feed plenty of a balanced ration which includes a faying mash, grain, and green feed. Along with it should go oyster shells and plenty of fresh water. For a fall and winter mash these specialists recommend a mixture of 2 parts, by weights, of cornmeal, 1 part of wheat shorts, 1 part of hulled ground oats, 1 part meat scraps, and one half part of steamed bonemeal. Fine salt should be added at the rate of 1 pound for each 100 pounds of the mixture. Fishmeal, milk, or tankage may be substituted for meat scraps, entirely or in part, when such change will not lower the value of the ration and will be economical. Green feed is essential.

Fair time is just around the corner and fair time is the time when the good farmer shines.

During the last eight years 42 Ohio County Agents have resigned to become farmers.

WHAT IS EVAPORATED MILK?

Did you ever stop to figure out the exact meaning of "Evaporated Milk"? The word "evaporated" may give you the idea that in the process of evaporation the milk has lost some of its valuable qualities. It hasn't. It has lost only water. Sixty per cent of the water is evaporated from the milk after it comes fresh from the cow. The first step in processing the milk is the evaporation, when a portion of the water content is removed. The second step is the homogenization, which insures the cream being distributed evenly throughout the milk. The third is the canning. The fourth is sterilization, which takes place in a can when the milk is subjected to sufficient heat to destroy the bacteria. This evaporated milk remains as pure and fresh in the container as when it is turned into the can in the farmer's barn.

Evaporated milk is now generally recognized as the freshest milk available to those not living on farms and producing their own milk. For freshness in milk means purity.

Transportation of milk from the dairy country to the city is well systematized and rapid and yet owing to the immense quantities of milk that must be rushed in daily, much of it must be obtained at considerable distances and a large per cent is necessarily some days old when it is delivered by the milkman.

Evaporated milk, on the other hand, is just what's needed in the city. It is in its "freshest moment," when it is in its finest state. It is never allowed to get old. The whole process from cow to can requires only a few hours. It may be interesting to know that the process of sterilizing takes place after the milk has been sealed in its containers. Once in its sterilized containers, there is no possibility of deterioration.

The sterilizing of evaporated milk comes its purity—it makes a safe milk for the children. Evaporated milk is bottled milk, and this makes it more dependable.

It may be used for any milk need with safety and economy.

LIVES WITH BROKEN NECK

Opp, Ala., Aug. 28.—Edward the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Z. F. Haygrove, who lives just a short distance from Opp, is recovering after his neck was broken when he struck the bottom of the creek bed several weeks ago while diving and swimming. He was sent to an Andalusia hospital where he has been confined since the accident until a few days ago, when he was brought home.

I'd rather be a hardshell Than anything I know; A kind of holy brethren, They love each other so. I'd rather be a hardshell, Because in them I find A happy, lovely people, All of the same mind. I'd rather be a hardshell, And with the gospel fed, Than to be the king of England, With a crown upon my head. I'd rather be a hardshell, And hear the gospel sound, Than to be the greatest statesman, That walks upon the ground. I'd rather be a hardshell, And suffer great reproach, Than to be a railroad president, Riding in his coach. I'd rather be a hardshell, And suffer scorn and shame, Than to be a heady preacher, With D. D. to his name. I'd rather be a hardshell, And live from hand to mouth, Than to be all the right Rev. D. D.'s, Either North or South. I'd rather be a hardshell, And live on bread and water, Than to be a fancy preacher, To please old Babylon's daughter. I'd rather be a hardshell, And labor for my bread, Than to have the gold of Ophir, To leave when I am dead. I'd rather be a hardshell, And be behind the times, Than to have my pockets full of hucks, Feeding to the swine. I'd rather be a hardshell, And wear a ragged coat, Than to be a social feather, And ambling of the goats. I'd rather be a hardshell, And grub for a living, Than to always be blowing, About the spirit of giving. I'd rather be a hardshell, And live on locust and honey, Than to always be begging, The poor folks for money. I'd rather be a hardshell, The bible for my guide, Than to be the czar of Russia, And all the world besides. I'd rather be a hardshell, And be esteemed a fool, Than to be a false religionist, Brought up in Sunday School. I'd rather be a hardshell, Even from my youth, Than to be raised in Sunday School, And learn to hate the truth. I'd rather be a hardshell, I glory in the name, I'd rather be a hardshell, Than to have Napoleon's fame. I've been a hardshell seven years, A hardshell I'll remain; I want to live a hardshell, And not be anything else. Nor wouldn't I I could, I'd rather be a hardshell, And eat that living bread; And there are the sentiments, Of H. L. Reed.

SEVEN KILLED IN BOILER EXPLOSION AT UNION-TOWN.

Uniontown, Ala., Aug. 27.— One white man, C. J. Buchanan, and six negroes were killed Thursday morning when a boiler connected with the ginney of Archer and Epps, Dayton, Ala., exploded. Three met death instantly. The other 4 died within an hour.

The gin and seed house were almost demolished.

Buchanan's head was severed from his body. The body was blown 200 yards.

The boiler was part of a portable engine owned by Buchanan, according to reports here, and had been put into operation at the ginney about four days ago. Before that, it had been in use at a point between here and Dayton in running a sawmill.

Dayton is a cotton center about 12 miles from Uniontown.

Wanted Human Tit-Bit to Top Off Pork Feast New Guinea cannibals, apparently, have a low sense of hospitality, says Merlin Moore Taylor, in the Wide World. He says that the mountain folks had duly provided the usual feast, but when their guests arrived they had been seized with the desire to top off their guests with a bit of human flesh, and accordingly attacked a visitor.

His life was saved by his fellow-villagers after a free-for-all fight, whereupon the mountaineers, although disappointed, insisted on a resumption of the feast.

In New Guinea all mountain hamlets are built upon the tops of peaks which offer a good view of the surrounding country, "so that our approach was seen long before we got to Kepellipoli, the place where the feast had been held. The Kepellipoli people, naturally, being none too easy in conscience, thought so large a body must be an evening party, and accordingly we walked into a neat ambush. The reception committee consisted of no only the Kepellipoli warriors, but all their friends from nearby hamlets.

"We had descended a small ravine and were following a well-defined trail along it when the trap was sprung.
One moment we were alone in the jungle; the next the banks on each side of us were covered with armed natives. Fortunately for us, they did not attack without warning, or our situation would have been hopeless.
Probably the sight of white men stayed their hands."

Hard to Find Meaning in Noise of Insects

The plaintive love-song of the cricket, and all the other insect sounds that are heard on a summer night may have no meaning at all to the insects themselves.

Judged by human ears, the best insect, musciculus of today belong to rather primitive orders. The more advanced groups, such as bees, beetles, flies and butterflies, make no sounds that we can hear, or else, at most, only sounds that seem to us to be nothing more than faint squeaks, buzzes, hums, or clicks. Whether the insects themselves hear these sounds has not been determined beyond doubt. It should be remembered that in man's affairs at least, many sounds are made without intention, and even contrary to desire—for example, sneezing and snoring.

If the sounds made by insects are merely incidental to friction between parts of their body, then those sounds have no biological significance, except as they may betray the insect to its enemies.

Useful Wedding Present

"Didn't know you had a boy," Mr.

"None," agreed the customer, "this she claims, she is going to have the Historic Mutiny

The Bounty sailed from England in 1787, bound for the Society Islands in the South Pacific. As the result of a mutiny Captain Bligh and nineteen of his men were set adrift near Anna-nooka, one of the Friendly Islands in an open boat. After being at sea 46 days, the little band reached Australia.
Captain Bligh on his return to England published an account of the mutiny. Some of the mutineers were captured and tried; of these six were condemned to death and three executed.
Eight others colonized Pitcairn's Islands in 1789, and remained there unknown to the world until 1834, when they were accidentally discovered by Bahian ship Annar.
